Johns' Mill Workers' House was most recently observed and photographed in February, 2003. Its condition was largely unchanged since the preparation of the State Historic Sites Inventory Form in the library of the Maryland Historical Trust, dated September, 1976.

The property is described in the following documents located at the Maryland Historical Trust Library:

Maryland Historical Trust State Historic Sites Inventory Form, by Beverly W. Young and James T. Wollon, Jr., September 1976.

The following observations were made during the visit to the property:

This simple stone dwelling continues to contribute as a resource of the Butler community. It is associated with the nearby Johns Grist Mill. The shed-roofed addition of the stone house has not been well-maintained; nevertheless, the character and integrity of the original design qualify the property for registration under Criterion C: Design/Construction.

Johns' Mill Workers' Houses
East side of Falls Rd. north of Butler
Not accessible
Circa 1812

These two small but substantial dwellings were probably related to the rural industries in this agricultural community. They were part of the property of the Johns family who operated the grist mill just north of here from the early 1800's. The westerly house is very traditional in form and detail and of especially good workmanship and design. It bears a datestone which is nearly illegible but appears to read: 1812, which is an acceptable date, architecturally for both buildings.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Two small stone houses stand on either side of Blackrock Run, a tributary of Western Run, immediately north of Butler. The westerly of the two houses is very close to Falls Road.

The westerly of the two Houses is of stone, one storey in height on its west or road side, two on its east, facing the stream. It measures approximately 18 by 24½ feet. The upper storey is expressed as two bays in length, each containing a 6/6 window; windows in the lower storey, east side, are four-light casements and a door is centered between them. A shed-roofed addition extends to the south, its framed upper storey containing the principal entrance in its west end facing the road; it is on a high stone foundation. The gabled roof of the main house rises above a simple wooden boxed cornice and there are no rake overhangs. A massive stone chimney rises flush with the south gable. Each storey, including the attic, has a window centered in the north end but the window of the principal upper storey has been closed with stone. A datestone is in the very peak of the gable, above the attic window, but its inscription is nearly illegible. The figures appear to be Johns Sep. 1812. 1812 is an acceptable date, architecturally, for this small stone dwelling.

The interior of this house was not examined.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

These two small stone houses appear to have been built as part of the Johns family mill operation at Black Rock Farm. Richard Johns purchased the mill site and surrounding land in 1794 from the widow of Thomas Matthews. A new mill was erected by his son, Kensey Johns, in 1800 and several dwellings, mill buildings and a blacksmith shop were added through the years.

In 1873, Shadrach Kemp purchased the 867 acres comprising parts of Miller's Delight, Mount Airy, Hare's Level and Cables' (or Caples') Habitation. Following Kemp's death in 1884, part of the property was sold to Joseph Royston. In 1912, Royston's heirs sold this parcel to Peter K. Fowble whose heirs continue to occupy the houses.

Continuation Sheet #1

The easterly of the two Houses is of stone, two storeys in height, three bays in length, with a low-pitched gabled roof; fire gutted this dwelling ca. 1955. The principal entrance is centered on the south side and a 6/6 window is in either flanking bay; the center bay is void of openings in the second storey. A shed-roofed porch shelters the first storey of the south side. A secondary entrance is centered in the west end. Earlier (than the fire) window frames remain in first storey openings, consisting of narrow beaded material. Gables are of vertical boards, probably the result of earlier stone gables being destroyed in the fire.

The interior of this house was not examined.

In a low hillside immediately north of the house is a stone-walled root cellar, its depth approximately three times its face width.
